

a-X Privacy Policy

Last updated: August 2026

a-X respects your privacy and is committed to protecting the personal information you provide when using our website, registering for an event or expedition, or communicating with us. This Privacy Policy explains what information we collect, why we collect it, how it may be used and shared, and your rights in relation to your personal data.

1. Who We Are a-X is a cycling club and community organising small-group cycling events and expeditions.

For the purposes of UK data protection law, a-X is the data controller for personal information collected directly by us.

For privacy-related questions or requests, please contact us using the contact details provided on the a-X website.

2. Information We Collect

Depending on how you interact with a-X, we may collect the following information:

- Your name and contact details;
- Age or date of birth where relevant to participation;
- Nationality or country of residence where required for expedition planning;
- Cycling experience and information relevant to your participation;
- Emergency contact details;
- Information about dietary or accessibility requirements;
- Relevant medical or health information that you voluntarily provide where necessary for the safe organisation of an event;
- Booking and payment status;
- Communications between you and a-X;
- Photographs or video captured during events;
- Technical information generated when you use our website, where applicable.

We aim to collect only information reasonably necessary to organise and administer our activities.

3. How We Use Your Information

We may use personal information for the following purposes:

- Process event and expedition registrations;
- Communicate with participants before, during and after an event;
- Plan routes, logistics and group arrangements;
- Coordinate accommodation, transport and other services where requested;
- Confirm payments and manage bookings;
- Provide relevant information to local service providers where necessary;
- Respond appropriately in an emergency;
- Manage safety and participation requirements;

- Maintain appropriate administrative records;
- Respond to enquiries; and
- Share information and imagery about a-X activities where appropriate.

Our legal basis for processing will depend on the information and circumstances involved. This may include processing necessary to perform our agreement with you, our legitimate interests in organising and administering a-X activities, compliance with legal obligations, or your consent where appropriate.

4. Health and Other Sensitive Information

Some expeditions take place in remote environments. Participants may therefore be invited to provide relevant medical, health, dietary or accessibility information.

Health information is treated as special category personal data under UK data protection law and will only be collected and used where there is an appropriate lawful basis and condition for doing so.

Where we ask you to provide health information voluntarily for expedition planning or emergency purposes, we may ask for your explicit consent to process that information.

Access will be limited to those who reasonably need the information for the organisation or safety of the event.

5. Payments

Payments to a-X may be processed by Stripe, an independent payment services provider.

Payment information entered into Stripe's payment system is processed by Stripe in accordance with its own privacy and data-protection terms. a-X does not receive or store your complete payment-card details.

Stripe may provide us with information necessary to administer your booking, such as your name, contact details, payment amount and payment status.

6. Registration Forms

a-X may use Google Forms or other third-party services to collect registration information.

Information submitted through these services may be processed by the relevant technology provider in accordance with its own privacy policy and data-processing arrangements.

Google privacy information: policies.google.com/privacy

7. Local and Third-Party Providers

Some a-X events involve independent local providers, including destination management companies, accommodation providers and transport providers.

Where reasonably necessary to organise services requested by a participant, we may share limited personal information with those providers.

For international expeditions, this may involve transferring information outside the UK. For example, information necessary to organise the Morocco expedition may be shared with our local destination management company or other providers in Morocco.

We will only share information reasonably necessary for the relevant purpose and will take appropriate steps to protect personal information where required by law.

Independent providers may also collect information directly from participants and will be responsible for their own processing of that information.

8. Emergency Contacts

Emergency contact information is collected solely for purposes connected with participant welfare and event administration.

Participants should ensure that the person they nominate as an emergency contact is aware that their details have been provided to a-X for this purpose.

9. Photographs and Video

Photography and video may be captured during a-X events.

General event imagery may be used for a-X's website, social media, promotional, documentary or community purposes.

Participants who do not wish identifiable photographs or video of themselves to be used should notify a-X.

Where specific consent is required by law, we will obtain it before using the relevant material.

10. How Long We Keep Information

We retain personal information only for as long as reasonably necessary for the purpose for which it was collected, including appropriate administrative, accounting, insurance, safety and legal purposes.

Information that is no longer required will be deleted or anonymised where reasonably practicable.

Sensitive information collected specifically for an expedition, such as medical and emergency information, will not be retained indefinitely and will be deleted when it is no longer reasonably required.

11. Cookies and Website Analytics

The a-X website may use cookies or similar technologies necessary for the operation of the website and, where applicable, to understand how visitors use it.

Where non-essential cookies or tracking technologies requiring consent are used, visitors will be given an appropriate choice before those technologies are activated.

12. Your Rights

Under UK data protection law, you may have rights including the following:

- Request access to personal information we hold about you;
- Request correction of inaccurate information;
- Request deletion of your information in certain circumstances;
- Restrict or object to certain processing;
- Withdraw consent where processing is based on consent; and
- Request transfer of certain information where applicable.

To exercise any of these rights, please contact a-X. You also have the right to raise a concern with the Information Commissioner's Office (ICO), the UK's data-protection regulator: ico.org.uk.

13. Changes to This Policy

We may update this Privacy Policy from time to time to reflect changes to our activities, services or legal obligations.

The latest version will be published on the a-X website with the date of the most recent update.
